The Book

Anger and Indigenous Men describes the work of a team of academics, psychologists, lawyers, counsellors and educationalists, from both Indigenous and non-Indigenous backgrounds, in developing programs that have the potential to play a role in reducing anger-related violence perpetrated by Indigenous men. Importantly, it combines Indigenous and Western perspectives on anger and violence.

What emerges from the book is an understanding that programs for Indigenous men might benefit from broadening the focus from problematic behaviour to a more holistic notion of well-being, placing the cultural context in which problems arise at the heart of any intervention.
